

TADELAKT

Exotic atmospheres and effects fruit of ancient techniques used to cover the Hammam, an eastern-style public bath, with coloured lime, were the inspiration behind the new ceramic project by CIR. Presenting Tadelakt, named after the Moroccan plaster it is dedicated to, a collection that clothes the surface of porcelain stoneware with the charm of a cladding from the Marrakech area, characterized by a pleasant aesthetic effect similar to marble and Venetian stucco, but featuring traditionally intense North African colours.

White as the flowers of the Maghreb, black as the mountains of Morocco, ochre as the streets of the old city, red as hot spices, green as mint tea and beige as cumin, a wide range of soft and warm colours in a project that will conquer any architectural and interior design space, bringing all its charm and beauty even at latitudes far removed from the land of inspiration. Tadelakt also offers a series of decorative patterns, to transform walls into veritable sceneries.

The collection offers designers four sizes for each shade, from the largest 120x120 cm to the smallest 10x40 - complemented by a rich decorative proposal on 60x120 cm large size tiles - to design creative pairings that will make any environment unique and special.
